Year Built circa 1890, 1933, Main house demolished

National Register Evaluation:

At the time of the previous survey, no determination of eligibility was made for the Manchester Farm. The property is recommended as not eligible for the National Register of Historic Places. The property is not eligible under Criterion A, as research conducted indicates no association with any historic events or trends significant in the development of national, state or local history. Historic research indicates that the property has no association with persons who have made specific contributions to history, and therefore, it does not meet Criterion B. It is not eligible under Criterion C, as the main building on the property is no longer extant. The remaining buildings lack architectural distinctiveness and have lost their historic association and feeling due to the demolition of the main house.

Description:

The Manchester Farm (Middleton House) was previously surveyed by the Prince George's County Historic Preservation Commission in 1984. Since that time, there have been numerous changes to the property. The most drastic change is that the main house is no longer extant. According to the property owner, Agnes V. Middleton, the house was extremely deteriorated due to neglect and termite damage. The current property consists of the outbuildings associated with the main house, and a tenant house which dates from the same circa 1890 time period. A 1933 bungalow and its associated garage are located on a separate lot within the boundaries of the Manchester Farm lot. The lot on which the bungalow sits was taken from the Manchester Farm property in the 1930s. It is owned by the same owner as the Manchester Farm property, but is not located on the same tax parcel.

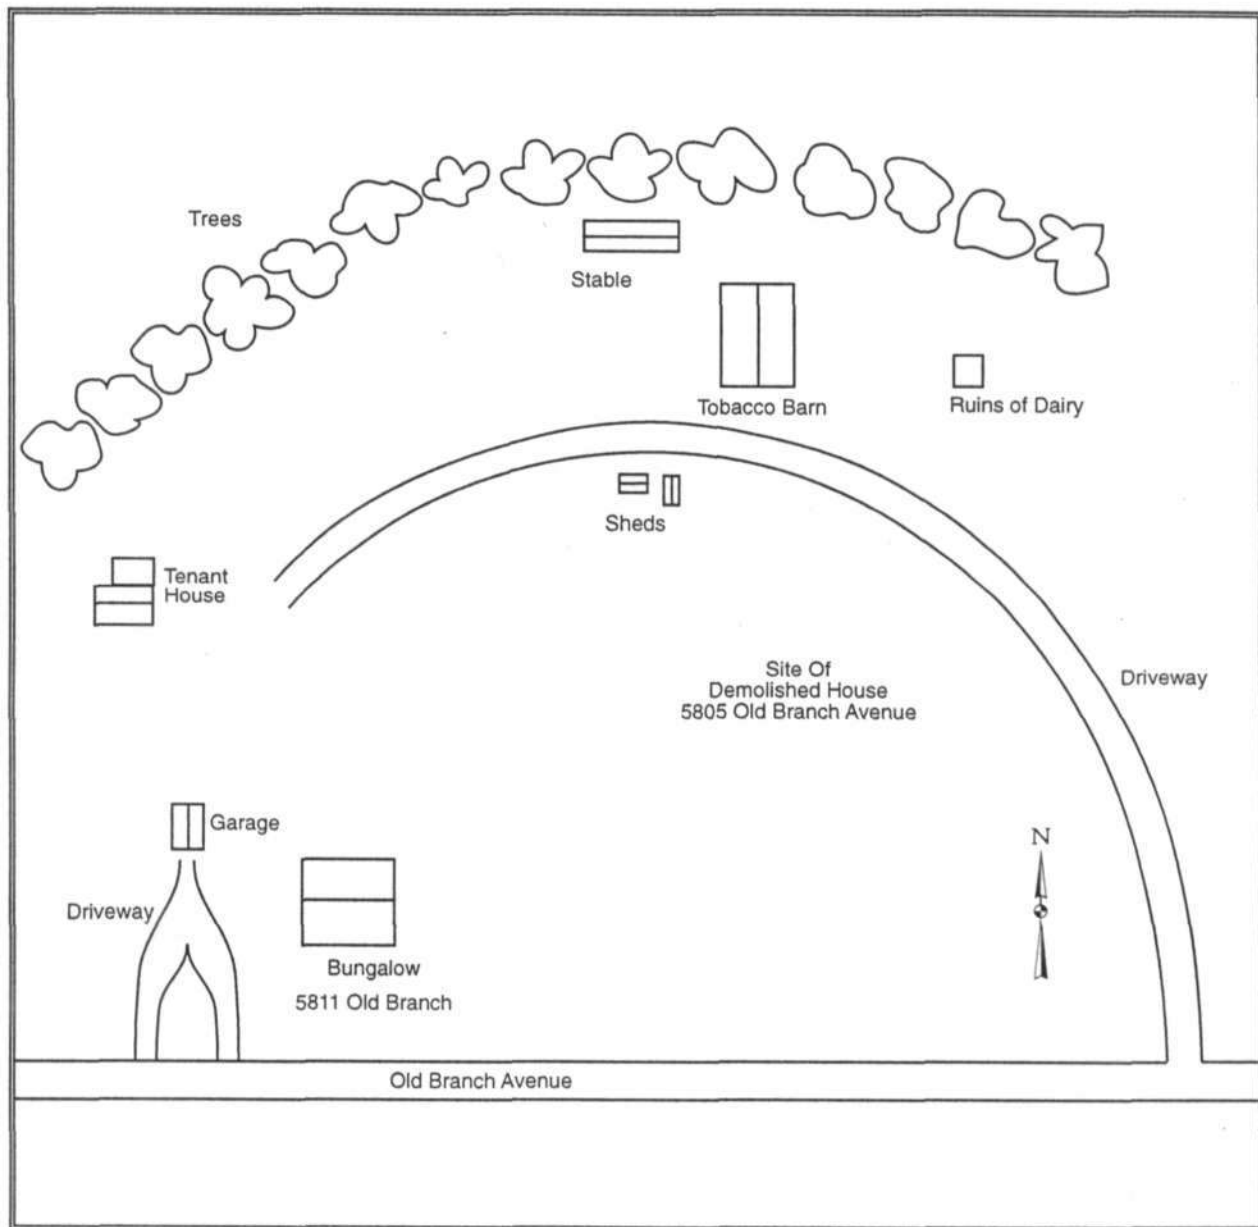

The tenant house associated with the property is located south of the site of the main house, and southwest of the bungalow. It is a 1-story, 3-bay, side-gable, wood-frame building with a 1-story rear ell. The tenant house sits on brick piers and is sheathed in weatherboard. It has a standing-seam metal roof, and 6/6 double-hung windows. The building is currently used for storage and is in deteriorating condition.

The remaining outbuildings which were associated with the main house consist of two sheds, a tobacco barn, a stable, and the ruins of a dairy building. The house stood in the inside curve of a drive which led from Old Branch Avenue into the property. The sheds, which are 1-story, front-gable, wood-frame buildings with vertical siding and corrugated-metal roofing, were located southwest of the house, on the same side of the drive as the house. The remaining outbuildings were located west of the house, on the opposite side of the drive.

The dairy building was the first in line on the west side of the drive, and it was a 1-story, hipped-roof, wood-frame building. Only the corner posts and a portion of the roof remain. The second building is the tobacco barn. It is a large, gable-roof, wood-frame building with vertical board siding and a corrugated-metal roof. The third building is the stable. It is currently overgrown with vegetation. It is a 1-story, side-gable wood-frame building with vertical board siding and a corrugated-metal roof. The interior is divided into stalls.

PRINCE GEORGE'S COUNTY
HISTORIC SITE SUMMARY SHEET

Survey #: P.G. #76A-7 Building Date: 1888 (main block)

Building Name: Manchester Farm (Middleton House)

Location: 5805 Old Branch Avenue, Camp Springs, Maryland

Private/_____/Unoccupied/Deteriorated/Inaccessible

Description:

The Middleton House is a two-story gable-roofed frame structure with entrance through the central bay of the five-bay east (main) facade. The three central bays are covered by a one-story hip-roofed porch with bracketed posts. The building is one-room deep, with a floor plan consisting of central passage and one parlor on each side. The fireplaces on the interior walls of the parlors are served by two interior chimneys (with corbelled caps) at the ridge. A one-and-one-half-story wing extends one room west of the main house; a one-story kitchen (with cellar room beneath) extends further to the west. South of the house is a pyramidal-roofed frame dairy-house, a tobacco barn constructed of a mixture of hewn and sawn timbers, and a frame tenant house.

Significance:

The main block of the Middleton House was built ca. 1888 by Theodore B. Middleton on the tract known as Manchester (or Deer Pond) which he had received in 1884 out of his father's estate. The house incorporated (as its rear wing) a small one-and-one-half-story structure which had stood on the property previously. This enlarged dwelling was the home of Theodore Middleton's family, and is owned today by the third generation. Never out of the Middleton family, it is now vacant and seriously deteriorated.

The Middleton house is a two-story gable-roofed frame structure with entrance through the central bay of the five-bay east (main) facade. The three central bays are covered by a one-story hip-roofed porch with bracketed posts. The windows are 2/2 double hung sash. The boxed cornice is returned at the gable ends. The building is one-room deep, with a floor plan consisting of a central passage and one parlor on each side. The fireplaces on the interior walls of the parlors are served by two interior brick chimneys (with corbelled caps) at the ridge.

A one-and-one-half story wing extends to the west of the main house, and is understood to have predated the main house which was built in 1888. The wing consists of a pantry/breakfast room with a small bedroom above. A brick chimney rises at the west end of the roof at the ridge. A one-story wing (kitchen) extends further to the west, and has a basement underneath.

South of the house is a pyramidal-roofed frame dairy-house in deteriorated condition. There is also a tobacco barn which is constructed of a mixture of sawn and hewn timbers; its members are mortised, tenoned and pegged. The barn is in deteriorated condition. Further to the south is a frame tenant house which dates from the early twentieth century.

Prepare both a summary paragraph of significance and a general statement of history and support.

The main block of the Middleton house was built ca. 1888 by Theodore B. Middleton on the tract known as Manchester or Deer Pond which he had received in 1884 out of his father's estate. His father, Charles Semmes Middleton, who served as Sheriff of Prince George's County, and as Clerk of the Court (1855-1861) owned an approximately 400-acre farm across the Washington-Tee Bee road (to the east) from the subject house, but was demolished many years ago.¹

The present house was built (ca. 1888) after Theodore B. Middleton's second marriage, probably incorporating as its rear wing a small one-and-half-story structure which had stood on the property previously. This enlarged dwelling served as the home of Theodore Middleton's family, and subsequently of that of his son Ellis O. Middleton, whose widow lived in the house until her death in 1975. The house has been vacant since that time, and is seriously deteriorated, especially by termite damage.²

A one-acre house lot was carved out of the Manchester farm property in the 1930's; on it stands the bungalow which is the present home of the Middleton heirs.
